The causes of accidents on railways are not so numerous as might be supposed, but the most disastrous in this country are apt to occur to bridges. This is not the case in Great Britain. In a period of six years, under the heading of "Failures of Tunnels, Bridges, Viaducts and Culverts," while in Great Britain twenty-nine accidents are returned, in America for the same period, under a similar heading, 165 casualties are ranged. English collisions are mostly traceable to constant overcrowding, while American derailments and bridge accidents are distinctly referable to the inferior construction of our road-beds.

It is curious to notice, in connection with the railroads, that in some years there is comparative immunity from disaster, while in others there occur a constant succession of serious calamities. This year the railroad companies are so far experiencing a notable illustration of the adage that it never rains but it pours.

Wonderful Cures.
W. D. Hoyt & Co., wholesale and retail druggists of Rome, Ga., say: "We have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery, Electric Bitters and Bucklen's Arnica Salve for two years. Have never handled remedies that sell as well, or give such universal satisfaction. There have been some wonderful cures effected by these medicines in this city. Several cases of pronounced consumption have been entirely cured by use of a few bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery, taken in connection with Electric Bitters. We guarantee them always. Sold by E. Wegner.

The Most Fatal Railroad Accidents.

Chicago Times.

The terrible railroad accident on Wednesday night has occasioned everywhere debate as to the comparative fatality in previous railway disasters. One hears constant mention of Ashtabula, and next, perhaps, the Tay Bridge tragedy in Scotland seems to have taken hold of the popular imagination. Neither of these calamities, however, comes up to that near Chatsworth, so far, at least, as loss of life and injury to persons go. At Ashtabula Bridge over one hundred perished by drowning, burning and in other ways. The horror of the thing was what made the calamity so fearfully memorable. Few were killed outright. It was a mass of human beings pinned down to watch, in the full possession of their faculties, the approach of the flames that would consume them. In the case of the Tay Bridge, where a passenger train was blown in a hurricane bodily into the sea, not a soul surviving to tell the tale, there is a certain awfulness that impresses us, but there is no shuddering at any agony of suffering. About seventy-four lives were lost. The disaster which stands pre-eminent for fatality in railway records occurred on the Morelos road, Mexico, through the fall of a bridge near Cuertala. In this accident which happened in February, 1881, over two hundred lives were lost. Bridge accidents have been numerous and disastrous. A memorable one occurred in January, 1878, to a party of excursionists returning from a Moody and Sankey meeting on the Connecticut Western Road. A bridge over the Farmington river gave way and thirteen persons were crushed to death or drowned and thirty-three others injured. Excursion trains have been frequently the victims of disaster. One of the earliest calamities in the history of railroads took place to such a train near Versailles, France. It was the birthday of King Louis Philippe, and holiday-makers were returning from Versailles to Paris. An axle broke, and a horrible holocaust was the consequence. Three carriages with locked doors were burned before the eyes of the spectators looking helplessly on. As many more were injured. Whole families perished. An accident occurred at Campbell Station, twelve miles from Philadelphia, which surpasses, as regards fatality, that in France. It happened July 17, 1856, to a train carrying 1,100 children on a Sunday-school picnic with their teachers and friends. Five cars were burned and sixty six persons perished. The injured numbered more than one hundred. Here, an excursion train running against time, came on a single track road in collision with a regular train. The record is full of similar disasters, too numerous to admit of specific reference. In 1878, at Wollaston, Mass., a large party of excursionists, returning from a rowing match on a special train, got derailed. Six forward cars were either thrown wholly to the one side or the other, or crushed between the two locomotives and the rear of the train. Nineteen persons perished and fifty were injured.

HOW A CRIME WAS FOUND OUT.

The Strange Manner in Which a Horrible Murder was Revealed in England.

In Somerset a widower, an agricultural laborer, wished to marry, but his choice refused on the ground that he had an eight-year-old girl and could not provide comfortably for both. Were the child "out of the way" she would consent. A week afterward, says a writer in All The Year Round, he took the child out for a walk, and the mother's sister, who had kissed her when her father took her away, was the last to see her father, who ever saw her alive. The father did not return and not much notice seems to have been taken of the double disappearance for a month or so. Then, by some accident, it came to the ears of one of the local justices of the peace. The idea, which he could never account for, at once possessed and filled his mind to the exclusion of all else that the girl had been murdered and that her body would be found at the bottom of a neighboring disused coal pit. He expressed his idea at the next meeting of the Magistrates, and urged upon them the examination of the pit, but they had no evidence to support his idea and the pit being full of water they declined to do anything on the ground that to pump out the pit would cause a larger expenditure of public money than they would be justified in making on the mere suspicion of one individual. But the Magistrate could obtain no peace for his own mind, and eventually determined to empty the pit at his own cost, which he did at the expense of over £200. At the bottom of the pit the workers were horrified to discover the body of the unfortunate girl, rolled and tied up in her father's old macintosh. The father was speedily captured in South Wales—the atrocious nature of the crime causing all the inhabitants of the west country to become amateur detectives for the nonce—was brought to trial, convicted and hanged. He made a full confession before execution. He had taken her to a field and bade her play while he worked. The work he pretended to be engaged in was to dig a trench—he intended grave—and while he dug she made garlands of wild flowers and placed them round his hat. When ready he split her head in twain with the spade and buried her. On the next day and the next he visited the spot to see if all was undisturbed. On the third day he found one of her feet exposed, and this so terrified him that he returned at night, took up the remains and threw them down the pit.

Garibaldi's Worshiper.
Contessa Strozzi is one of the annual pilgrims to Cantera. She is the remarkable woman who, since 1848, accompanied Garibaldi in all his campaigns. She was one of the few who, after the glorious battles at Rome in 1848, followed the hunted lion through the mountains and forests of Umbria to Ravenna; she helped to nurse and to bury the American washerwomen, the mother of Garibaldi's children, who in a hundred common dangers had become more closely united to the son of the Nice fishermen than by the blessing of the priest. She went before the "Thousand" and prepared the soil for them at Palermo. Contessa Strozzi belongs to an old aristocratic family and was born at Rome. The yellow, wrinkled face of the little old woman has the expression of undaunted energy, and her eyes shine with the fire of youth when she talks of her idol.

The Smell of Paper Money.
In speaking of a recent defalcation at the Troy postoffice, a gentleman said: "It is never safe to inclose an old bill in an envelope to be sent by mail. Why," said he, "men who are experts can tell whether a letter contains money or not simply by the smell of smell. If you will notice an old green-back, it has a peculiar smell about it that can readily be perceived, even if it is inclosed within a letter. It is better to send a registered letter or a postal note, or, if you inclose a bill, be sure it is a new one. That will not amiss."—Albany Journal.

How to Boom.

[Sacramento Bee.]

The boom of all booms known to modern times was that at Wichita, Kansas, during the year past. Even the marvelous development of Southern California is not to be compared with it. A few years ago few people had heard of Wichita at all, or if they had, it was only incidentally as a stopping station along the line of a railway. But they have a fair country around Wichita, although in California it would not be considered much where the country is buried in snow for one-third of the year and parched by a cruel sun for another third. But what is better than rich soil or benign climate, they had in Wichita men of brains, energy, perseverance and intelligence. They were a tireless, rest less band, and determined that their town was not what it ought to be. They met and talked and found out what they wanted. Then they began to act. Every man of them agreed to set aside his personal preferences or prejudices and pull for the boom, well knowing that if the town prospered so would, of necessity, they. There were no petty bickerings, no rivalry of selfish interests. Everybody was for the boom heart and soul and, incidentally, for himself. Then the work seemed easy enough. These citizens met, not once a month or week, but nearly every night. The next step and most important after the determination to work together was to insist upon filling the local newspapers with live, fresh advertisements. Everybody responded, and the newspapers went out to the country round as messengers with tales of Wichita's prosperity. From being richly, struggling concerns, the papers began to assume the air of rugged health, and people abroad who read them began to surmise that a town which maintained such papers must be a right smart place. Strangers began to give the town some attention and suddenly the enterprising citizens began to feel the boom. In one year 5,000 buildings were erected and 20,000 people added to the population. Property multiplied in value in town and all the region round. The village became a city as it in night. Brains, enterprise, vigilance did it.

In Los Angeles methods somewhat similar prevail. There the universal determination is to sell every stranger something. If the visitor calls at one real estate office and fails to satisfy himself he is cordially sent to another with the assurance that he will there find just what he needs. If one-lunged Mr. Smith tells an agent that agent Jones offered him a certain lot for $9,000 he is advised that the offer is a bargain. Jones will not dicker land that his rival Robinson has for sale, and Robinson is quite as magnanimous. So the thing goes. "Sell 'em something," is the motto of everybody. If Jones can't do it, he will help Robinson to sell. Every body is helping everybody else, and the result is that all are helping one another. These lessons of the boom ought not to be lost to Sacramento. Unfortunately, many of the real estate agents here have not got above the mannerly belief that a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, a sentiment that is true as to birds, but not as to commissions. If they would forego the commission of today, obtained by detraction and devaluation of all lands not under their control; if they would insist that all land is a good bargain, although it has not been put in their hands for sale; if they will tell the inquisitive purchaser who, perhaps, has been around to B's office previously, that B. is a reliable man and has some really good bargains; if they will argue that every acre of land hereabouts is well worth what is asked for it; in short, if they will drop the petty, purile, primitive ways of the pinched and sordid man of short sightedness, and commission men in Sacramento, and commissions now only occasional things, will become as frequent as the nimble penny.

Swedish Social Freedom.
[Cor. Boston Commercial Bulletin.]

The most surprising freedom prevails among the lower classes, and for that matter, it is openly hinted at Carlstead among the aristocracy as well, promiscuous kissing being indulged in upon every occasion, more especially at hotels, where it is expected that upon setting one's bill the chambermaid and waitress who attended the traveler must be both kissed before the entire company. This peculiar custom was particularly trying to my companion, who, upon every occasion, chose rather to incur the displeasure of the young ladies than to sanction a practice that certainly can lead to no good result.

A divorce was granted the plaintiff in the case of Frank Muther vs. Fannie B. Muther, by Judge Pressley, Wednesday, on the ground of cruelty and desertion, the charge of adultery being withdrawn. The custody of the children was awarded the plaintiff. After the divorce was granted the property questions involved were settled amicably between the parties.

Ethan Allen's Pluck.

[Poultry, Va., Cor. Troy Times.]

While Ethan Allen was a prisoner on his passage to England, closely confined to his cabin, he discovered that a pin or wire that fastened one of his handcuffs was broken. Extricating the pieces with his teeth he was enabled to loosen the bolt and set one hand at liberty by the aid of which and his teeth he soon had both at liberty, and he was not long in liberating his feet. But fearing a discovery might lead to worse treatment, he replaced his irons, bolts and pins before the arrival of his keeper. It soon became a recreation for the General to take off and put on his irons at pleasure. One day the captain, wishing to afford the crew merriment, ordered that Allen be brought on deck. Hoping to frighten him the captain said: "There is a probability that the ship will founder; if so what will become of us, especially you, Mr. Allen, a rebel against the king?" "Why," said Allen, "that would be very much like our dinner hour." "Why so?" said the captain, not reflecting that Allen was allowed to come on deck only when the captain went down into his cabin to dine. "Well, you see," answered Allen, "I'd be on my way up just as you would be going below." This answer did not please the captain and he began a regular tirade of abuse against the American people. "In a short time," said the captain, "all the rebels will be in the same situation as you—self." This was too much for Allen, and raising his hands to his teeth, he soon snapped the bolts and pins, took off his irons and threw them overboard, seized the panic-stricken captain by the collar and threw him headlong upon the deck. Then turning to the frightened crew, he exclaimed in a voice of thunder: "If I am insulted again during the voyage I'll sink the ship and swim ashore." This exploit had such an effect on the Captain and crew that no further insult was offered to the General during the passage.

A careful survey of the agricultural interests of a certain town in New England with whose farmers we have had a personal acquaintance for a term of years, discloses some facts that apply to farming in general. The men who have stuck to farming and who have worked faithfully, but no harder than any successful business man works, are out of debt, or nearly so, and have an air and reputation of thrift. The men who have been continually trading cows and changing from one thing to another in their farm management, with no evident plan or system, are as poor as they were a few years ago, if not worse off. A good many of this class are men who have not put much real labor into their business. Some of them have been shiftless, others have been actually lazy, while others have worked well in summer but have loafed much of the time in winter, evidently making no plans for the season's work. It is no wonder that this class complain that farming doesn't pay. They won't make any business pay. The trouble is in the man, not the business.—Homestead.

The Mulberry Tree.
[Pleasant Republicans.]

It would seem as if the black mulberry would be one of the best kinds of tree to plant along roads and highways for shade in a place like this county. It certainly makes splendid shade and is a much handsomer tree than the locust. Its fruit is good for home use and would serve to keep the birds from the orchards. Its wood is said to be as valuable as redwood for fence posts. C. A. Tuttle says that on his father's farm in Western New York, mulberry fence posts were good and sound after being in the ground more than twenty-five years, and V. V. Mann recalls that in Missouri, where every man was his own cooper, mulberry wood was considered the best that could be had for cooperage.

CALIFORNIA'S STAND-BY.

The official announcement of the Southern Pacific Company, the other day, that it would reduce the rates of travel over all its lines in this State, is additional evidence of what this powerful company is doing to boom California. It is probably due to the efforts of the Southern Pacific Company more than to any other one thing, if we except Nature, that booms are prevailing over almost every section of the State penetrated by its railroad system. This company has spent in a quiet way unlimited capital in advancing the interests and advertising the climate and resources of the Golden State. Still, notwithstanding all that it is doing and has been doing for a long series of years to build up and boom our State, petty politicians and political hacks have attempted to ride into popular favor by nagging at its heels and crying out "soulless corporation," etc. For a time these fellows had things pretty much their own way. But latterly the people of the State have woken up to a realization of the fact that the Southern Pacific Company is California's stand-by, and the senseless cry raised against that corporation's selfishness in the past is now about played out.

It stands to reason that being one of the heaviest tax-payers in the State and owning property in every direction, that it has the interests of the whole State at heart, and if the truth be told it is that company that has created the California boom, and its cheerful assent to the demands of the Railroad Commissioners for a reduction on fares, shows that its directors are willing to do the right thing by the people, notwithstanding the carping of political buccaners and the complainings of chronic kickers.

The Straits of Carquinez are to be bridged. The "Bulletin" has this to say on the subject: "It has been definitely decided by the railroad authorities to construct, as soon as the proper working force is obtainable, a large railroad bridge across Carquinez Straits. The project has been discussed in a vague way for some time, but the rapid development of the upper part of the State and the increased demands of travel have forced a decision in the matter. The bridge will be built at the narrowest point of the straits, from a little above Vallejo Junction on the south shore to about midway between Benicia and Vallejo. The ground has already been surveyed and the plans drawn for the work. It is probable that a double draw in the bridge will be made to allow the the passage to Port Costa of the tall-masted ships of the wheat trade.

This bridge will do away with the large ferry-boat Solano, and will be used for the through overland travel as well as the fast increasing traffic from the upper valleys."

When the Trade-dollars Redemption Act was under consideration in Congress, the Director of the Mint estimated that the number of trade dollars in this country was 7,088,792. The number presented for redemption thus far is 7,177,878, which shows pretty good figuring on the part of the Mint authorities. Of the 25,965,924 trade dollars coined, 30,500,000 were taken to China, about two millions of which were brought back and half a million were remitted in the mints. It is probable that a good many are kept as curiosities or in cabinet collections, but the redemption is about complete. The Government will refuse to receive them at par September 4th, after which they will pass, if at all, only at their bullion value.

The frontispiece to the September Harper's will be one of Alfred Parsons's beautiful illustrations to Wordsworth's sonnet, the subject being "The River Duddon."

The condition of Governor Bartlett, who was stricken with paralysis in Oakland, a few days ago, remains unchanged and his chances for recovery are more than even.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, August 15, 1887.

The new police regulations and city ordinances devised and put in force by the District Commissioners, are in full swing in Washington and the result is that the city is more like Goldsmith's deserted village than ever. Summer time in Washington is loneliness personified, but this summer takes the lead for being the dullest known for many a year. The early adjournment of Congress in March brought about the early departure from the city of the occupants of the fine houses on the handsome avenues, who after all are only sojourners here, their interests and connections belonging in almost every case to some other community. Now the Commissioners, with their new laws made by themselves, have reduced the town to the appearance of the enchanted woods that led to the palace of the sleeping beauty. But there is no sleeping beauty in this case, unless it be the President at Oak View, who still remains there taking things very quietly. The street cars of a city are its characteristics and its signs of activity, but none are heard in Washington. The bells are off all the horses and the street vendors of fruit and vegetables are forbidden to cry their wares and anxious housekeepers have to hang out the window on the lookout for the ice cart whose afternoon visit eagerly looked for during the warm spell of last month was heralded heretofore by the tinkling of the bells on the horses. The Commissioners could help the business interests of the place vastly more if they would exercise their surplus energies and misdirected zeal in trying to devise some means of making the capital city as attractive in summer as it is in winter instead of forcing a set of arbitrary rules, which they arrogantly call laws, upon an already much-enduring community. What we need here is some sort of amusement and diversion in the summer time. Clean streets and beautiful parks are not sufficiently inviting to induce strangers to come and tarry with us. We must have people on the streets and in the parks. Instead of that the Commissioners are driving away from the town by these new ordinances, the large class of people who constitute the majority in all great cities. I refer to small dealers, who find it impossible to make a living in Washington on account of the heavy tax put upon them before they can ply their trades, and the restrictions they meet with in trying to carry on their business. Take it all in all, the capital of the greatest Democracy on the earth has the most autocratic government in the world, and all because Congress that does not want to be bothered with the affairs of the District of Columbia, there being no citizen of the District entitled to a vote, gives into the hands of these men power over 200,000 people that the President of the United States does not possess. There is but one hope for the down-trodden citizens of Washington. The Commissioners have got plenty of rope, and they may hang themselves, and by their abuse of authority bring about a change of or an improvement in the present form of government.

The President will not leave Washington until October it is authoritatively stated by his private Secretary, Col. Lamont. The reports that he was to go on a fishing excursion with Senator Kennan, and afterwards to fetch Mrs. Cleveland home from Massachusetts, are incorrect. The President has had as his guests at Oak View, recently, William L. Scott, Member of Congress from Erie, Pa., and ex-Senator Allen G. Thurman of Ohio. Mr. Scott, it may be remembered, was at the time of Mr. Manning's retirement from the Cabinet, spoken of as the probable Secretary of the Treasury. It is said that Mr. Scott declined the position. Ex-Senator Thurman has been in Washington to argue an important railroad case. He is in the best of health and spirits and seems as vigorous as ever.

As soon as the contracts for the building of the new naval vessels are out, Secretary Whitney will start for Bar Harbor, Me. If the United States Naval fleet commanded by Admiral Luce is still at Bar Harbor on the arrival of the Secretary, it is probable that the visitors at that resort will be treated to some interesting naval exercises and a review.

Secretary Bayard has returned from his trip to the seashore and was at his desk in the State Department last week.

Last autumn, the President, moved perhaps by the advice of physicians and friends, decided that he needed exercise, and concluded that the south garden of the White House was a suitable place to take it in. Accordingly the gates of the southern grounds were kept locked from four o'clock in the afternoon to nine in the morning. And the President accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland was seen to pace solemnly up and down the walks like a political prisoner or a dethroned king. The plan evidently did not work very well for after trying it for three mornings only, the President gave up his pedestrian efforts, but the gates have remained locked. Why, nobody knows. The south garden has always been a thoroughfare and if the President don't want to walk there himself, he may as well let those that do.

A Dastardly Deed.

(Santa Rosa Republic.)

M. Byrne, proprietor of Byrne's Hotel opposite the depot, was assaulted by an unknown party, Sunday evening, in the reading and bar-room of his hotel. Samuel Stoner, an eye-witness to the assault, related the following particulars to a Republican reporter, who arrived on the spot shortly after the deed was done: "The assailant stepped behind the bar-counter, picked up the dinner bell and commenced to ring it. Mr. Byrne asked him to quit ringing the bell. The man still persisted in his annoyance when Mr. Byrne started toward him, uttering an unpleasant epithet. The assaulting party then struck Mr. Byrne on the head with the bell and ran out, saying he did not allow any one to abuse him. As soon as struck Mr. Byrne fell senseless to the floor and those present ran to his rescue. The fleeing man made good his escape."

Timothy Hallinan, Mr. Byrne's assailant, was arrested Sunday evening on the train near Miller's station by Deputy Sheriff Louis Brietenbach, and two San Francisco police officers who were visiting this city Sunday. The "toughs" on the train tried to intimidate stalwart Brietenbach, but were quickly kept at bay by Louis' significant threats in case they interfered. When arrested Hallinan had changed hats and coats with a friend, but he was readily identified by a witness who accompanied the officer. The prisoner was brought to this city Sunday evening on the 7:30 o'clock train and lodged in the County Jail. Since his arrest several witnesses to his brutality have fastened the guilt of the crime upon him. He was taken before Judge Brown Monday morning and held to answer to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. He furnished bail in the sum of $500. Hallinan left for San Francisco on Monday afternoon.

People Demand Protection.—Patent Medicines.

What are they? As a general thing they are prescriptions having been used with great success by old and well-read physicians. Thousands of invalids have been unexpectedly cured by their use, and they are the wonder and dread of physicians and medical colleges in the U. S., so much so, that physicians graduating at medical colleges are obliged to discontinue proprietary medicines, as through them the country doctor loses his most profitable practice. As a manufacturer of proprietary medicines, Dr. G. Green, of Woodbury, N. J., advocates most cordially—in order to prevent the risk that the sick and afflicted are liable to almost daily by the use of patent medicines put out by inexperienced persons for aggrandizement only, and the employing of inexperienced and incompetent doctors by which almost every village and town is cursed; and men claiming to be doctors who had better be undertakers, experimenting with their patients and robbing them of their money and health—for the good of the afflicted that our Government protect its people by making laws to regulate the practice of medicine by better experienced and more thoroughly educated physicians and thereby keep up the honor and credit of the profession, also form laws for the recording of recipes of proprietary medicines, under examination and decision of experienced chemists and physicians appointed for that purpose by the Government, before they are licensed for general use. He would most freely place the recipe of Boesche's German Syrup and Green's August Flower under such laws, had he the proper protection, and thereby save the prejudice of the people, and avoid the competition and imitation of worthless medicines.—Copied from the Chicago Mail, Aug. 3, '87.

The Southern Pacific Company, at the suggestion of the Railroad Commissioners, has signified its willingness to reduce the rates on all its lines in this State. The present 4 cent per mile rate will be reduced to 3 cents, the 5 cent divisions to 4 cents and the 6 cent sections to 5 cents. The new schedule of rates, it is expected, will go into effect on the 1st of September.

How sad to see one gifted with youth and beauty, a pleasant home, surrounded by loving friends, and everything that makes life desirable and enjoyable, fading away day by day, with no hope of release save in death. It was only a slight cold at first. A single dose of Freese's Hamburg Tea would have removed the obstruction, restored the circulation, and given back to society one of its brightest ornaments.

Physicians Have Found Out

That a contaminating and foreign element in the blood, developed by indigestion, is the cause of rheumatism. This settles upon the sensitive subcutaneous covering of the muscles and ligaments of the joints, causing constant and shifting pain, and aggregating as calcareous chalky deposits which produce stiffness and distortion of the joints. No fact which experience has demonstrated is so true as that Stouck's Bitters has stronger evidence to support than this, namely, that this medicine of comprehensive uses checks the formidable and atrocious disease, nor is it less positively established that it is preferable to the poisons often used to arrest it, since the medicine contains only salutary ingredients. It is also a signal remedy for malarial fevers, constipation, dyspepsia, kidney and bladder ailments, debility and other disorders. See that you get the genuine.

There has been an unusual demand, the past few weeks, for Sonoma basalt blocks for paving the streets of San Francisco, and in consequence large shipments are made daily to that city over the Sonoma Valley Railroad, the principal shippers being Messrs H. C. Manuel and S. Schocken, both of whom have extensive quarries on the hills north of town.

An item is going the rounds of the Press that Gen. M. G. Vallejo of this place has become a member of Sonoma Parlor, No. 111, Native Sons of the Golden West. This is an error. The General has not yet become a member, although we understand it is his intention to present his name for admission at no distant day. Mr. U. P. Vallejo, a son of the General, who was born in this place 45 years ago, is a member of Sonoma Parlor, and it is probably due to this fact that the item about General Vallejo being a member of the society originated.

Changed Its Place of Meeting.
At a special meeting of Clay Literary Society, held last Monday evening, it was decided without a dissenting voice to accept the committee's report recommending that hereafter the society hold its meetings at Union Hall. These meetings will be held semi-monthly instead of weekly, as heretofore, the meeting nights being on the first and third Monday's of each month. The society is in a very flourishing condition, the membership numbering forty-three. Of this number at least twenty have joined within the past month. Union Hall is a most desirable meeting place for the society in more ways than one. Aside from securing one of the finest and most accessible halls in this city, the society also obtains the use of a piano gratis, and effects a saving of $4 per month in rent and janitor fees by the change.

Will Leave Us.
J. J. Wytark leaves for Santa Rosa next Tuesday, where he goes to take charge of the feed department of King's large grocery store in that city. Jake, for the past seven years, has been one of Sonoma's most active citizens. He has always taken a lively interest in everything of a social nature that has taken place in this city since his residence here and he will be greatly missed by a large circle of acquaintances. Besides belonging to several secret societies, Mr. Wytark is also a member of the Sonoma Brass Band, the Turn Verein, Clay Literary Society and the Entre Nous Social Club, in all of which he has been a most valued and prominent member. Genial and whole souled, there is hardly a person in Sonoma who will not look upon Jake's departure from our midst with regret, as it will leave a void in our social circles that will be hard to fill. We wish our friend success in his new home.

Old Publications.
Geo. H. Cornelius, for many years a resident of this place, has in his possession a copy of the "Missouri Gazette" published in St. Louis and bearing the date of July 26, 1898, and also a well-preserved copy of the "California" dated May 24, 1848, and printed in San Francisco by J. D. Hoppe & Co. This copy of the paper appeared shortly after the discovery of gold at Coloma and before the rush to the mines commenced from the Eastern States. It contains the announcement of the death of Capt. Wm. L. Leidesdorff at the age of 36, after whom that street in San Francisco takes its name. Among the advertisements is that of the "Bazaar" Meat Market, which announces the price of beef at the exceedingly low price of 1 to 4 cents per pound. L. W. Boggs was the agent for the "California" in Sonoma, which at that time was the principal city in Northern California.

Condemnation Proceedings.
The Southern Pacific Railroad Company have commenced condemnation proceedings for right-of-way against a number of Sonoma Valley farmers, among the number being Mrs. Thierkoff, Frank Tate, O. W. Nordwell, J. MacMackin, Robt. Clark, Mrs. Tarrant and Jas. Sullivan. Deputy Sheriff's Gresham and Vanderhoff came down from Santa Rosa and served papers on all the above parties one day last week. The outcome of these suits will of course result ultimately in the railroad company securing the necessary right-of-way if we are to judge of similar actions that have been brought in the past by railroad companies in this and other states.

The Raffle.
The following were the winners of the prizes at the raffle which took place last Wednesday evening at the Occidental Hotel. H. Gullies, handsome basket of paper flowers; Mrs. Johansson, two fine large fairs; Mrs. C. H. Ward, pair of plaques. Everything in connection with the raffle passed off pleasantly. Wm. Brown acted as master of ceremonies and Judge Small and Jas. Albertson assisted.

A SANTA ROSA MURDER.
A Man Stabbed to Death—The Murderer Escapes.
[Associated Press Dispatch.]
SANTA ROSA, August 24th.—Tonight about 7 o'clock Jonathan Roberts, a highly-respected citizen of this place, who lives near the railroad bridge, while in his barn heard somebody running through his premises. On coming out he saw a man with his face covered with blood, closely pursued by another man. The pursuing party yelled to Roberts: "Stop him! Stop him! He's murdered a man!" Mr. Roberts stopped the pursued man, and when the pursuer came up the fleeing man struck at his pursuer with a picket. The pursuing man retaliated by throwing a rock, and warned Roberts to be careful, as the man had a knife next to his breast. He told Roberts the fugitive had stabbed a man near the bridge, and to hold him while he went to town for an officer. The blood on the fugitive's face was said to have been caused by falling down near the bridge while trying to escape.

While the accused was gone for an officer the pursued man told Roberts that three men had beaten him and he was fleeing for life. As his face was covered with blood Roberts thought his story was true and ordered him to go to the police office and have his assailants arrested. He said he would and started toward town. Soon after the accusing party returned with Deputy Sheriff Brietenbach, but before they arrived John Spridgen was coming up the railroad track and discovered a dead man a few feet south of the railroad bridge. Spridgen went to the house of Sheriff Colgan, who lives near the scene of the tragedy, and informed him what he had seen. Sheriff Colgan proceeded to the scene and arrested three men, who were among the party of four, including deceased. All the men arrested except one claim to have been in the party with the murdered man, whose name is James Mullen. They say the murderer escaped and that he was called "Red." In an interview at the jail with the man who pursued the murderer, the former said the murderer wanted Mullen to join in standing up the men near the bridge. Mullen became indignant and replied that he was no crook. One word brought on another and a fight ensued, when the murderer drew a fourteen-inch dagger and stabbed Mullen to the heart. Soon after discovery Mullen was taken to the undertakers, and upon undressing the body two wounds were discovered, one a large, gaping wound two and one-half inches long about two inches below the left nipple, ranging diagonally across the body; also a slight wound one inch to the right of the navel, about one-sixteenth of an inch deep.

James Mullen is apparently thirty years of age, sandy complexion, with a sandy mustache, and about 5 feet 7 inches in height. His hands indicate that he is a laborer. The prisoners give the following names: George Newton, James Carroll and Edward Duffey. Deceased and prisoners are strangers in this city.

THE SEEDLESS SULTANA.
A Valuable Pamphlet on Bleaching Issued by the State.
A valuable pamphlet on the bleaching of seedless Sultana raisins by J. H. Wheeler, Chief Executive Viticultural Officer, has just been issued by the Viticultural Commission. It describes the process and points out the advantages to be derived from pursuing this plan in curing the raisins. The variety of grape is rather tardy in coming into bearing, but on attaining maturity is very prolific, having been known to produce fifteen tons per acre. The imported Sultanas come to our markets bleached, and thus command better prices than the domestic variety. The bleaching has been carried on by but few in this State, but the results have been very satisfactory. The method pursued is as follows:

The grapes should not be picked until fully ripe, as upon this depends the success in bleaching. They should then be dipped, without delay, in a lye solution containing one pound of concentrated lye to five gallons of water. The dipping causes the skin to crack, when they should be removed and rinsed in cold water. The lye solution should have a quality of olive oil added to it, which adds to the soft, glossy appearance of the raisins. The grapes are then dried in the ordinary manner. After drying they are gently rubbed over a sieve, to remove the stems. They are then packed and are ready for market.

The time which the grapes should continue in the dip varies with the locality, being from one to two minutes.—Chronicle.

The New Store.
Smith's Cash Store is now one of the best stocked and most attractive dry goods houses in Sonoma. The show windows, counters and shelves have been tastefully arranged by the manager Mr. G. H. Hotz, who invites the public to call and inspect his stock and see the bargains that he is offering. Remember the place, next door to the Postoffice.

That's to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.
When these are clogged and choked with mucus which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do the work. And what they cannot do well, they cannot do at all.
Call it cold, rough croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and lung and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Lung Cure, which every druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

A Common Cold

Is often the beginning of serious affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes, and Lungs. Therefore, the importance of early and effective treatment cannot be overestimated. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral may always be relied upon for the speedy cure of a Cold or Cough.
Last January I was attacked with a severe Cold, which, by neglect and frequent exposures, became worse, finally settling on my lungs. A terrible cough soon followed, accompanied by pains in the chest from which I suffered intensely. After trying various remedies, without obtaining relief, I commenced taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was Speedily Cured.

I am satisfied that this remedy saved my life.—Jas. Webster, Fairview, N. H.
I contracted a severe cold, which suddenly developed into Pneumonia, presenting dangerous and obstinate symptoms. My physician ordered the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. His instructions were followed, and the result was a rapid and permanent cure. Mr. B. Simpson, Rogers Prairie, Tex.
Two years ago I suffered from a severe Cold, which settled on my lungs. I consulted various physicians, and took the medicines they prescribed, but received only temporary relief. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking two bottles of this medicine I was cured. Since then I have given the Pectoral to my children, and consider it for Colds, Coughs, and All Throat and Lung Diseases, ever used in my family.—Robert Vanderpool, Mendocino, Pa.

The Best Remedy
Some time ago I took a slight Cold, which, being neglected, grew worse, and settled on my lungs. I had a hacking cough, and was very weak. Those who know me best considered my life to be in great danger. I continued to suffer until I commenced using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Less than one bottle of this valuable medicine cured me, and I feel that I owe the preservation of my life to its curative powers.—Mrs. Anna Lockwood, Akron, New York.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is considered, here, the one great remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs, and is more in demand than any other medicine of its class.—J. F. Roberts, Magnolia, Ark. It

SWEETHEART, FAREWELL.

Among the whispering trees we lingered
And clasped in hand, my dearest love
And I spoke words I never can forget,
Of being true to love, until I die;
And with his eyes what lips would fail to Tell his story, what time he said: "Sweetheart, farewell."
With sweet tears he clasped me to his breast,
And looked upon me with angel's eyes,
And kissed my brow, and kissed my lips,
and kissed
The tears away that now began to rise;
And over the same tale of love would tell,
What time he sadly spoke: "Sweetheart,
farewell."
And so he went away, and I am weary Of nature's smiles; my heart is full of sorrow,
And long days without him are so dreary,
And all the bright has faded out of life.
"Come back, my love, the old sweet tale
tell."
But no answer to say: "Sweetheart, farewell."
—William Cowan in Chambers' Journal.

DISEASES OF THE FEET.

What are the most frequent diseases of the nails? Well, corrugated nails are much more frequent on the toes than on the hands. Occasionally every nail will be threaded with rough lines, and the color of the entire surface yellow and unhealthy. Another variety of this disease is an aggravated form of an appearance of being eroded or worm eaten, and sprinkled over more or less with hollow pits. Medicine, unfortunately, can do very little for this unsightly trouble, which comes from a poor circulation of the blood, resulting from indigestion or malaria, or some chronic defect in the circulation. Troubles of this sort are more frequent among women than men, and are more frequent among women than men. Women, it is well known, are more troubled with cold feet than men, and this difficulty springs from analogous causes. The ladies are our most patient customers. They cannot themselves quite as naturally to the injury of a perfumed foot bath, or gentle scraping, paring, polishing, and tinting processes. We lay the foot upon a silken cushion on which rests a fresh linen napkin, and the patient can read, or talk, or even doze while her feet are being beautified and doctored.
She generally prefers to talk. She tells you what a friend of hers had done to her feet, and what an accident a cousin of hers met with.

"Almost all troubles of the feet are unnecessary. Caution and common sense would have prevented them. In regard to the toes, there are some forms of joint diseases, inflammations and perspiration, for which the possessor is not directly responsible.
If taken in time almost any trouble of the sort can be cured. It is a pity that beginning of many evils. Much of the most highly perfumed is made from the refuse of rendering houses, and is full of alkali. Such soaps are likely to produce the worst forms of cutaneous affection."
—Chicago Tribune Interview.

A POOR BOY IN CONGRESS.

Speaking of Kentucky elections, some curious stories come to me in regard to the Hon. William Preston Taul, a member of the house who represents the mountainous region of Kentucky, described in Charles Egbert Coadlock's novels. Taul has a long, dark, caustic face, smooth-faced, narrow-complexioned man of 35 years of age. He has black eyes, dark hair, and a sort of a frontal about him. He is a man of community, and the congressional directory says that he prepared himself for congress by studying for the ministry three years and for the law three years. He is a poor boy, a poor boy, a poor boy, and was elected to one of the highest offices in the land. "Washington Cor. Cleveland Leader."

Two Sides of City Life.

It was one of the hottest of the recent severely hot afternoons that a reporter was waiting near the corner of Twenty-third street and Fifth avenue, awaiting briefly and unintentionally at a meeting between two friends. Both were ladies of matrons bearing the nobility of French, and speaking in French, and this is what they said two feet away from him:
"What dreadful weather."
"Not so hot as yesterday, do you think?"
"It seems so to me."
"Judge more by Nana, my dog's feelings, really, than my own."
"Oh, yes, poor little creature. She must suffer this weather."
"She felt yesterday's heat more than any day yet. Why, I had her in the coolest room in the house and then fanned her most of the day."

Here the reporter's car fortunately bore him away.

A half hour later his way took him through one of the streets of the hospital district in upper Lexington avenue. It was dispensary day at one of these excellent institutions, and the block was crowded on the shady side of the street with waiting mothers bearing in their arms the sick babies whose little lives were weakly gasping out under the accumulated burdens of stifling heat, want of nourishment, and the polluted air of crowded tenements. The sight was pitiful—the weary, hopeless expression of the women, and the pale, swollen faces of the babies, who lay most of them with closed eyes and hanging, nerveless hands.
In forcible contrast rose the spectacle of an enraptured pug lying on its cushion in a cool, airy room, while its devoted mistress tirelessly waved the refreshing palmetto before its wrinkle and expression of contentment. —New York Times.

For the Silver Fox.

"What is the most expensive kind of fur sold?"
"Silver fox; in perhaps, the rarest, fur-reaching animal known. It is found in the Arctic, and its skin is worth from $100 to $200. I have often sold the skin of this animal measuring two by three feet for $100. Ladies call every fur of a light color silver fox and never fail to ask for it.
They don't buy much, however, when they learn the price of the skin. A silver fox has a most beautiful fur, which is of a bluish-gray color. The fur is mainly used for trimming. The fur of the Russian and the silver fox (rabbit) somewhat resembles the silver fox in color." —Brooklyn Eagle.

POISON IN THE ASHES

What the Mt. Lebanon Shakers Found—Incident in the History of a Quiet Community.

The Mount Lebanon (New York) Shakers are a quiet community, secluded from the fret and worry of the outside world.
They are widely known, however, for their strict honor and probity in business.

The Shakers believe that nature has a remedy for every disease. A few have been found—the rest are as yet unknown.
Many were discovered by accident. Others came to light as the result of patient experiment and research.

Nervous Dyspepsia is a comparatively new disease, growing out of the conditions of modern life. It is a joint affection of the digestive organs and of the nervous system. These two were formerly treated as separate ailments, and it was left to the clear-sighted Shakers to prove that the basis of this terrible and often fatal complication lies chiefly in the disordered and depraved functions of digestion and nutrition. They reasoned thus: "If we can induce the stomach to do its work, and stimulate the excre-tory organs to drive out of the body the poisonous waste matters which remain after the life-giving elements of the food have been absorbed, we shall have conquered Nervous Dyspepsia and Nervous Exhaustion."

And they were right.

Knowing the infallible power of Shaker Extract (Seigel's Syrup) in less complicated though similar diseases, they resolved to test it fully in this. To leave no ground for doubt they prescribed the remedy in hundreds of cases which had been pronounced incurable—with perfect success in every instance where their directions as to living and diet were scrupulously followed.

Nervous Dyspepsia and Exhaustion is a peculiarly American disease. To a greater or less extent half the people of this country suffer from it—both sexes and all ages. In no country in the world are there so many insane asylums filled to overflowing, all resulting from this alarming disease. Its leading symptoms are these:
Frequent or continual headache; a dull pain at the base of the brain; bad breath; nauseous eructations; the rising of sour and pungent fluids to the throat; a sense of oppression and faintness at the pit of the stomach; fatulence; wake-fulness and loss of sleep; disturbance with food even when weak from the need of it; sticky or slimy matter on the teeth or in the mouth, especially on rising in the morning; furred and coated tongue; dull eyes; cold hands and feet; constipation; dry or rough skin; inability to fix the mind on any labor calling for continuous attention; and oppressive and sad forebodings and fears.

All this terrible group Shaker Extract (Seigel's Syrup) removes by its positive, powerful, direct yet painless and gentle action upon the functions of digestion and assimilation. Those elements of the food that build up and strengthen the system are sent upon their mission, while all waste matters (the ashes of life's fire) which unremoved, poison and kill, are expelled from the body through the bowels, kidneys and skin. The weak and prostrated nerves are quieted, toned and fed by the purified blood. As the result, health, with its enjoyments, blessings and power, returns to the sufferer who had, perhaps, abandoned all hope of ever seeing another well day.

The wonderful efficacy of Swift's Specific as a remedy and cure for rheumatism and all blood diseases, has never had a more complete illustration than this case affords. The candid, uncolored and emphatic testimony given by the venerable gentlemen must be accepted as convincing and conclusive.
The gentlemen to whom Mr. Martin refers, and to whom he is indebted for the advice to which he owes his final relief from years of suffering, is Mr. King, for many years the popular night clerk of the Lawrence House, at Jackson.

JACKSON, Miss., April 20, 1897.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, Atlanta, Ga.

Gentlemen—I have been an invalid patient for forty years, having contracted pulmonary and other diseases in the Mexican War, but not till the last of March, 1875, did I feel any symptoms of rheumatism.
On that day I was suddenly stricken with that disease in both hips and ankles. For twenty days I walked on crutches. Then the pain was less violent, but it was not from joint to joint. For weeks I would be totally disabled, either on one side or the other of the body. The pain never left me a moment. I had eleven years and seven months of this suffering.
I was first attacked, to October 1, 1875, when I was suffering. I had no other relief, but I was cured, during these eleven years, by the use of various physicians, and tried everything known to medicine, but I was never cured. I am now, after the use of the Swift Specific, a well man. I am now, after the use of the
